A new poll tax was introduced in 1380 with a rate three times higher than the previous tax.

I think that this is the most important because some people might not be able to afford the new tax so they could be kicked out of their homes and some people could die because of it. If they did not have enough they might starve

THE PEASANTS REVOLT

Henry wants to marry but the lord does not give him permission for it.

The Black death (1348-1350) killed between 30% and 50% of population of Britain. As a result, fewer people were working on the land. Wages rose but now the statute of Labourers demands that they be lowered again. Black death had killed over 2 million people and had spread to thousands of more.

Black death is a plague that had raged over the world forever until now.
