Review

Add the link to your review of the entire process (and make it accessible):

When I first started to plan my podcast I decided to think about how my podcast should be set up and whether to do a vlog or podcast. I did this because I wanted to be prepared and have a plan ready for when I start my podcast so it would be easier.

When I started my research about the topic I chose when I was planning I decided to be specific in what I was searching up by saying how water pollution affects animals. I added some facts and information on this document and said if it would help me create my vlog, fortunately they were all really helpful because I got them from trustworthy websites. After that I started thinking about different bits I would use for my podcast and started to think about how to introduce myself and structure it. With the introduction, the main point (which is to answer what unites and divides us) and the summary. For the review I got different people to tell me what they think about my podcast and how I can make it better next time. I did have some difficulties with the background noise and saying too many ums and saying my sentence with wrong grammar and forgetting what I wanted to say.

I am very proud about the podcast I have done because I never used bandlab before and I never did a podcast before but now I know how to organise the structure of the podcast.
